Philosophy

Part of our mission at XLIS is to be a community-driven school. This sense of community extends to our beliefs on how behavior is modeled. We believe that we learn our behaviors from our environment and that this environment can be used to lead us in both positive and negative ways. Other key parts of our mission are for us to become open-minded, life-long learners and global citizens. To achieve these goals we employ the philosophy of restorative practices. Every stakeholder at XLIS aims to live the IB Learner Profile Attributes so that students become inquirers, knowledgeable, thinkers, communicators, principled, open-minded, caring, risk-takers, balanced and reflective.

Restorative practices is a theory that encourages the building of positive relationships within a school community through adequate care and support. The focus is to right a wrong that has been done repair a relationship and come to a resolution. Examples of this may be as simple as a genuine apology or committing to give a compliment each day for some time.

Restorative practices allow individuals who may have committed harm to take full responsibility for his/her behavior by addressing the individual affected by the behavior. For this action to be taken the individual needs to have time to reflect on his/her behaviour.

Examples of this may be as simple as a genuine apology or committing to give a compliment each day for a period of time.

Restorative practices allow individuals who may have committed harm to take full responsibility for his/her behavior by addressing the individual affected by the behavior. In order for this action to be taken the individual needs to have time to reflect on his/her behavior, acknowledge that they have damaged a relationship and make a plan on how the relationship can be restored. Whenever possible the consequence should have a direct relationship to the inappropriate behavior. For example, the consequence of littering could be cleaning the cafeteria. The consequence of smoking could be research and spreading awareness of the impact of smoking on health.

The subject/homeroom teacher shall be the initial person to deal with the issue and inform all necessary parties. In primary school, a reflection sheet is completed, and one copy is filed in the principal's office. It is the responsibility of the homeroom teacher to communicate with the parents after receiving the information. Students of concern are discussed with the counselor, principal, and teachers. It is the responsibility of duty teachers to inform the homeroom teachers/lead teacher. In middle/high school all teachers are responsible for logging inappropriate behavior in the Student Support Log. Students of concern will be discussed during weekly meetings.

Role of Principals and Counselors

The counselors and principals work closely as a team. They play a significant role in ensuring a safe and inclusive environment at XLIS. They are available to deal with all types of serious behavioral issues. Teachers should submit a referral form to the counselor and enhanced learning teacher if the student needs support. They will observe the student and determine what level of support is required. The principal and counselor should both be copied on communications regarding discipline.
